The Inventive Generation

Once, at the University of California, a student got up to say that it was impossible for people of Ronald Reagan's generation to understand the next generation of young people. "You grew up in a different world," the student said. "Today we have television, jet planes, space travel, nuclear energy, computers ..." When the student paused for breath, Ronnie said, "You're right. We didn't have those things when we were young. We invented them."
